The diagram consists of a grid of squares and rectangles. The grid is composed of several rows and columns. The squares are labeled with numbers from 1 to 120. The labels are placed in the center of the squares. The squares are colored in a repeating pattern of red, blue, green, yellow, and black. The grid is divided into several sections by thick black lines. The top section contains squares 1 through 100. The middle section contains squares 101 through 120. The bottom section contains squares 121 through 140. The right section contains squares 141 through 160. The left section contains squares 161 through 180. The grid is also divided into several sections by thick blue lines. The top section contains squares 1 through 100. The middle section contains squares 101 through 120.
